

Week ending issue: July 24, 2015 – Issue # 258

Policy

From the WIC Services Policy and Procedure Manual – 360.60 Infectious Disease Control, Hepatitis B and Bloodborne Pathogen Training

OSHA regulations require that employers provide training and education concerning bloodborne pathogens to all their employees who are at risk of occupational exposure. Provide training during work hours at no expense to the employee. Employees must be trained during the first month of employment and at least annually thereafter.

Required topics include:

- Epidemiology of bloodborne diseases,
- Agency's exposure control plan and how to obtain a written copy,
- Work practice controls,
- Proper handling of equipment,
- Hepatitis B vaccine,
- Response to blood-related emergencies,
- Post-exposure evaluation and follow-up,
- Handling exposure, and
- Questions and answers.

Have employees sign a training attendance form and record completion in staff training and education records

Thank you of the Week

"WIC has helped me to have a healthier mind and body. The office and staff have been so kind and expressed sincere interest in me and my child. I never felt negatively judged for having a low income like at some other social services offices, or rushed through the door like at doctor appointments. My breastfeeding peer counselor and my nutritionist have been ready with patient ears, helpful advice and encouragement every step of the way. WIC checks have provided an opportunity to have access to foods I would never have realized I needed without them. While I was pregnant, I drank milk by the glassful consistently for really the first time and now serve it to my child as well. In addition, WIC checks and farmers market checks afforded me a chance to learn how to make foods like yogurt, bean dip and lots of new vegetable-based dishes. WIC has been a pleasant introduction into a whole healthier life for me and my child." ~WIC Participant

Participant Centered Services

People live up to what they write down! Encourage clients to not only tell you a goal they would like to work on but have the write it down as well!

eWIC/Focus Update

Terminated Breastfeeding Status

If the breastfeeding tab in IWIN does not have a "Terminated" Breastfeeding status listed, the infant or child will continue to be listed as breastfeeding in sections of Focus. Please be sure to terminate breastfeeding status when appropriate.

Breastfeeding Grand Rounds 2015

Breastfeeding and the Workplace: Success Takes a Team

Thursday, August 6, 2015, 8:30am - 10:30am EDT

Cathy Carothers, BLA, IBCLC, FILCA

Co-Director, Every Mother, Inc.

Ruth Lawrence, MD

Professor of Pediatrics, Obstetrics, and Gynecology,
University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry

Federal and state laws require employers to support breastfeeding women in the workplace. Research shows that employers want to support employees who are breastfeeding, yet are often unsure of the basic requirements for supporting breastfeeding mothers. Evidence shows that women are more likely to continue breastfeeding when their employer has supportive policies and practices in place. In addition to employers, breastfeeding mothers need support from family members, child care and health care providers.

The 2015 Breastfeeding Grand Rounds will feature nationally recognized speakers, Cathy Carothers, co-director of Every Mother, Inc. and Dr. Ruth Lawrence, Professor of Pediatrics, Obstetrics, and Gynecology, University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry. The speakers will discuss the importance of supporting breastfeeding mothers and the challenges mothers and employers face in doing so. New York State and federal laws and regulations will be reviewed. Strategies and creative solutions to comply with state and federal regulations will be featured. Speakers will share available resources and discuss the impact that child care and health care provider support has on breastfeeding success for working mothers.

Viewers will also learn about the breastfeeding friendly designation program for child care centers in New York State and hear directly from employers, mothers and child care providers.
